

Petros Kolovos: Short Curriculum Vitae

Petros Kolovos graduated from the Faculty of Nursing of National and Kapodistrian University of Athens (2002) and from the Department of Health Visitor of Technological Educational Institute of Athens (1998). He owns postgraduate degree in Health Care Management (2005). His PhD thesis (2011) from the Faculty of Nursing of National and Kapodistrian University of Athens has the title "Investigation of the patient's role in clinical decision making during nursing care". He is studying Social Anthropology at the Panteion University (2014).

From June 2008 up today he is officially as Laboratory Teaching Staff in Clinical Nursing at the Nursing Department of the University of Peloponnese and has participated in laboratory and clinical training of the following courses: Fundamentals of Nursing I, Fundamentals of Nursing II, Transcultural Nursing, Medical Nursing II, Clinical Medical Nursing and Clinical Surgical Nursing. Since the academic year 2013-14 he has taught the following courses: Clinical Nursing, Surgical Nursing I, Teaching Patients-Critical Analysis of Clinical Experiences, Clinical Medical Nursing, Clinical Surgical Nursing, Critical Analysis of Clinical Experiences and Ethics and Conduct in Nursing. From 2006 to 2008 he worked as a clinical nurse at the Pathology Clinic of the General Hospital of Sparta. His research interests focus mainly on the area of clinical nursing, nursing education and primary health care.